Dear Parents,

I hope everyone had a relaxing Spring Break last week. I want to take a few minutes to welcome everyone back to our online learning as we enter our fourth week away from school. I am sure everyone has had some challenges over the four weeks and I hope the adjustments you have been making have worked out well for you. As you know, we have made some slight adjustments along the way thus far in an attempt to lessen the stress and manage instruction successfully as we continue with the curriculum.

The high school administration has had daily conversations about our online learning and about our annual spring events that occur during the last three months of the school year. We are hoping to get additional guidance from the Governor near the end of the week as to how long he may anticipate online learning to continue. This information will allow us to be more concrete with our plans moving forward. In the meantime, we continue to encourage all of our students to be active in all of their courses and to communicate with their teachers as questions arise.

We will continue to provide updates for our students and parents as we have more information to share.

Be well.

Darren Groh
