Advanced Placement US History

Grade 10

Full Year

Course Overview

In Advanced Placement US History, students investigate significant events, individuals, developments, and processes in nine historical periods from approximately 1491 to the present as defined by the College Board curriculum. Students will exercise, develop and utilize the same skills and methods employed by historians to craft understandings of the past: analyzing primary and secondary sources; developing historical arguments; making historical connections; and utilizing reasoning about comparison, causation, and continuity and change. The course views evidence of the past within eight themes that students explore throughout the course in order to make connections among historical developments for different populations in different times and places: American and national identity; work, exchange, and technology; geography and the environment; migration and settlement; politics and power; America in the world; American and regional culture; and social structures.

This course meets the second half of the state graduation requirement in United States History and prepares students for intermediate and advanced college courses by making demands equivalent to those of a full-year, introductory college course. The curriculum has been approved by the College Board's Advanced Placement Program and prepares students for the AP United States History Exam.

Interdisciplinary Connections

English Language Arts

- RI.9-10.1. Accurately cite strong and thorough textual evidence, (e.g., via discussion, written response, etc.) and make relevant connections, to support analysis of what the text says explicitly as well as inferentially, including determining where the text leaves matters uncertain.
- RI.9-10.4. Determine the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in a text, including figurative, connotative, and technical meanings; analyze the cumulative impact of specific word choices on meaning and tone (e.g., how the language of a court opinion differs from that of a newspaper).
- RH.9-10.1. Accurately cite strong and thorough textual evidence, to support analysis of primary and secondary sources, attending to such features as the date and origin of the information.
- RH.9-10.2. Determine the theme, central ideas, key information and/or perspective(s) presented in a primary or secondary source; provide an accurate summary that makes clear the relationships among the key details and ideas.

- RH.9-10.3. Analyze in detail a series of events described in a text; draw connections between the events, to determine whether earlier events caused later ones or simply preceded them.
- RH.9-10.4. Determine the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in a text, including vocabulary describing political, social, or economic aspects of history and the social sciences; analyze the cumulative impact of specific word choices on meaning and tone.
- RH.9-10.5. Analyze how a text uses structure to emphasize key points or advance an explanation or analysis.
- RH.9-10.6. Compare the point of view of two or more authors in regards to how they treat the same or similar topics, including which details they include and emphasize in their respective accounts.
- RH.9-10.7. Integrate quantitative or technical analysis (e.g., charts, research data) with qualitative analysis in print or digital text, to analyze information presented via different mediums.
- RH.9-10.8. Assess the extent to which the reasoning and evidence in a text support the author's claims.
- RH.9-10.9. Compare and contrast treatments of the same topic, or of various perspectives, in several primary and secondary sources; analyze how they relate in terms of themes and significant historical concepts.
- RH.9-10.10. By the end of grade 10, read and comprehend history/social studies texts in the grades 9-10 text complexity band independently and proficiently.
- W.9-10.1. Write arguments to support claims in an analysis of substantive topics or texts, using valid reasoning and relevant and sufficient evidence.
  - A. Introduce precise claim(s), distinguish the claim(s) from alternate or opposing claims, and create an organization that establishes clear relationships among claim(s), counterclaims, reasons, and evidence.
  - B. Develop claim(s) and counterclaims avoiding common logical fallacies, propaganda devices, and using sound reasoning, supplying evidence for each while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both in a manner that anticipates the audience's knowledge level and concerns.
  - C. Use transitions (e.g. words, phrases, clauses) to link the major sections of the text, create cohesion, and clarify the relationships between claim(s) and reasons, between reasons and evidence, and between claim(s) and counterclaims.
  - D. Establish and maintain a style and tone appropriate to the audience and purpose (e.g. formal and objective for academic writing) while attending to the norms and conventions of the discipline in which they are writing.
  - E. Provide a concluding paragraph or section that supports the argument presented.
- W.9-10.2. Write informative/explanatory texts to examine and convey complex ideas, concepts, and information clearly and accurately through the effective selection, organization, and analysis of content.
  - A. Introduce a topic; organize complex ideas, concepts, and information to make important connections and distinctions; include formatting (e.g., headings), graphics (e.g., figures, tables), and multimedia when useful to aiding comprehension.
  - B. Develop the topic with well-chosen, relevant, and sufficient facts, extended definitions, concrete details, quotations, or other information and examples appropriate to the audience's knowledge of the topic.
  - C. Use appropriate and varied transitions to link the major sections of the text, create cohesion, and clarify the relationships among complex ideas and concepts.
  - D. Use precise language and domain-specific vocabulary to manage the complexity of the - topic.

- E. Establish and maintain a style and tone appropriate to the audience and purpose (e.g. formal and objective for academic writing) while attending to the norms and conventions of the discipline in which they are writing.
- F. Provide a concluding paragraph or section that supports the information or explanation presented (e.g., articulating implications or the significance of the topic).
- SL.9-10.1. Initiate and participate effectively in a range of collaborative discussions (one-on-one, in groups, and teacher-led) with peers on grades 9–10 topics, texts, and issues, building on others’ ideas and expressing their own clearly and persuasively.
  - A. Come to discussions prepared, having read and researched material under study; explicitly draw on that preparation by referring to evidence from texts and other research on the topic or issue to stimulate a thoughtful, well-reasoned exchange of ideas.
  - B. Collaborate with peers to set rules for discussions (e.g. informal consensus, taking votes on key issues, presentation of alternate views); develop clear goals and assessment criteria (e.g. student developed rubric) and assign individual roles as needed.
  - C. Propel conversations by posing and responding to questions that relate the current discussion to broader themes or larger ideas; actively incorporate others into the discussion; and clarify, verify, or challenge ideas and conclusions.
  - D. Respond thoughtfully to various perspectives, summarize points of agreement and disagreement, and justify own views. Make new connections in light of the evidence and reasoning presented.
- SL.9-10.4. Present information, findings, and supporting evidence clearly, concisely, and logically. The content, organization, development, and style are appropriate to task, purpose, and audience.
- SL.9-10.5. Make strategic use of digital media (e.g., textual, graphical, audio, visual, and interactive elements) in presentations to enhance findings, reasoning, and evidence and to add interest.

Computer Science and Design Thinking

- 8.1.12.IC.3: Predict the potential impacts and implications of emerging technologies on larger social, economic, and political structures, using evidence from credible sources.
- 8.1.12.DA.1: Create interactive data visualizations using software tools to help others better understand real world phenomena, including climate change.
- 8.1.12.DA.5: Create data visualizations from large data sets to summarize, communicate, and support different interpretations of real-world phenomena.

Units of Study

Unit 1: Frontier and Factory (~10 classes)

- What evidence helps explain the causes and effects of the settlement of the West from 1877 to 1898?
- What socioeconomic continuities and changes associated with the growth of industrial capitalism from 1865 to 1898 have historians identified?

- What factors have led to increasing globalization, and how has increasing globalization influenced U.S. society?
- How did the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001 impact America's role in the world?

Learning Objectives/Discipline Standards of Practice

Learning Objectives:

Revision Date: September 2021

- Students will understand what history is
  - History is a discipline of inquiry and analysis of the evidence of the past to create useful understandings of the human experience.
- Students will understand how history is practiced
  - The historical practice creates historical understandings through an active process of posing insightful questions of the past, finding, analyzing and synthesizing historical evidence and sources, and drawing defensible conclusions based on evidence (interpretation).
- Students will understand what critical thinking is
  - Critical thinking is the process of analyzing and evaluating our thinking in order to improve it.
  - Thinking consists of separate steps and processes. Paying attention to the separate steps and processes of thinking and understanding how they work improves our thinking.
- Students, alone and in groups, will be able to:
  - Engage in Chronological Thinking
    - Construct timelines of the events occurring during major eras.
    - Explain how major events are related to one another in time.
  - Engage in Spatial Thinking
    - Select and use various geographic representations to compare information about people, places, regions, and environments.
    - Use maps and other documents to explain the historical migration of people, expansion and disintegration of empires, and growth of economic and political systems.
  - Engage in Critical Thinking
    - Compare and contrast differing interpretations of current and historical events
    - Assess the credibility of sources by identifying bias and prejudice in documents, media, and computer-generated information.
  - Engage in Presentation Skills
    - Select and analyze information from a variety of sources to present a reasoned argument or position in a written and/or oral format.

College Board Historical Thinking Skills

Developments and Processes

- Identify and explain a historical concept, development, or process.

Sourcing and Situation

- Analyze sourcing and situation of primary and secondary sources.

Claims and Evidence in Sources

- Analyze arguments in primary and secondary sources.

Contextualization

- Analyze the context of historical events, developments, or processes.

Making Connections

- Using historical reasoning processes (comparison, causation, continuity and change) analyze patterns and connections between and among historical developments and processes.

Argumentation

- Develop an argument.

College Board Reasoning Processes

- Comparison
- Causation
- Continuity and Change

Discipline Standards of Practice:

- Developing Questions and Planning Inquiry
  - Developing insightful questions and planning effective inquiry involves identifying the purposes of different questions to understand the human experience, which requires addressing real world issues. Inquiries incorporating questions from various social science disciplines build understanding of the past, present and future; these inquiries investigate the complexity and diversity of individuals, groups, and societies.
- Gathering and Evaluating Sources
  - Finding, evaluating and organizing information and evidence from multiple sources and perspectives are the core of inquiry. Effective practice requires evaluating the credibility of primary and secondary sources, assessing the reliability of information, analyzing the context of information, and corroborating evidence across sources. Discerning opinion from fact and interpreting the significance of information requires thinking critically about ourselves and the world.
- Seeking Diverse Perspectives
  - Making sense of research findings requires thinking about what information is included, whether the information answers the question, and what may be missing, often resulting in the need to complete additional research. Developing an understanding of our own and others' perspectives builds understanding about the complexity of each person and the diversity in the world. Exploring diverse perspectives assists students in empathizing with other individuals and groups of people; quantitative and qualitative information provides insights into specific people, places, and events, as well as national, regional, and global trends.
- Developing Claims and Using Evidence
  - Developing claims requires careful consideration of evidence, logical organization of information, self-awareness about biases, application of analysis skills, and a willingness to revise conclusions based on the strength of evidence. Using evidence responsibly means developing claims based on factual evidence, valid reasoning, and a respect for human rights.
- Presenting Arguments and Explanations
  - Using a variety of formats designed for a purpose and an authentic audience forms the basis for clear communication. Strong arguments contain claims with organized evidence and valid reasoning that respects the diversity of the world and the dignity of each person. Writing findings and engaging in civil discussion with an audience provides a key step in the process of thinking critically about conclusions and continued inquiry.
- Engaging in Civil Discourse and Critiquing Conclusions
  - Assessing and refining conclusions through metacognition, further research, and deliberative discussions with diverse perspectives sharpens the conclusions and improves thinking as a vital part of the process of sensemaking. Responsible citizenship requires respectfully listening to and critiquing claims by analyzing the evidence and reasoning supporting them. Listening to and understanding contrary views can deepen learning and lay the groundwork for seeking consensus.
- Taking Informed Action
  - After thoroughly investigating questions, taking informed action means building consensus about possible actions and planning strategically to implement change. Democracy requires citizens to practice discussion, negotiation, coalition seeking, and peaceful conflict resolution. When appropriate, taking informed action involves creating and/or implementing action plans designed to solve problems and create positive change.

Instructional Resources and Materials

Whole class resources have been identified with an asterisk.

A broad diversity of historical evidence of the past in the form of primary source materials as well as secondary source interpretations of the past are assigned or recommended by teachers in the course of instruction. Primary source materials in text, art, photographs, images, film, audio recordings, and statistical data include, but are not limited to, correspondence, diaries, census and court records, legislation, manuscripts, maps, memoirs, music, art, news stories, oral histories, speeches and sound and film recordings. Secondary sources to support student learning in the discipline of history include, but are not limited to, book excerpts, articles, essays, video clips, maps, charts, photographs, art, music, and web-based digital materials. Instructional and reference materials to support student learning in the discipline of history are recommended by the College Board and the Social Studies Department and are included in Units of Study outlines.

The instructional materials vary in order to explore course content and essential questions while meeting the learning needs of students.

Assessment Strategies

Assessment is designed to measure a student's mastery of a course standard and learning objective. Assessment can be used for both instructional purposes (formative assessment) and for evaluative purposes (summative assessment).

Teachers may choose to have students practice and demonstrate their understanding of concepts and performance of disciplinary practices through a variety of means including, but not limited to those listed below:

- Discussion and dialogue in whole-class discussions.
- Discussion, dialogue and collaboration in small-group and paired conferences.
- Performative, project-based, activities such as live and recorded presentations, mock trials, historic role plays and debates.
- Guided question responses in structured analysis of primary and secondary sources.
- Annotation, notation and analytical mark-ups of primary and secondary source, text, images, and maps.
- Drawings, digital infographics, image collages and sketched representations of historical concepts, developments, and events.
- Formative assessment utilizing the College Board's My AP Classroom unit Progress Checks.
- Quizzes and tests consisting of question types and scoring guidelines consonant with the College Board's Advanced Placement exam in US History including multiple choice, short and long essays, and Document Based Question.
